

Service Fee Guide

www.nthssa.ca/fees

Introduction

This guide is intended to provide information to clients and patients of the Northwest Territories (NWT) Health and Social Services System about service fees.

NWT Health and Social Services Authorities charge fees for services that aren't covered by the NWT Health Care Plan and some services that aren't considered "medically necessary". Fees may also be charged to individuals that do not have Canadian health care coverage or those from provinces that do not have an agreement for cross-jurisdiction billing.

Question and Answers

What are Service Fees?

Service Fees may be charged by a clinic, hospital or health centre when you receive a service that is not covered by the NWT Health Care Plan.

The practice of charging for services that are not covered by a health care plan is consistent across Canada.

What services are not covered by the NWT Health Care Plan?

Services provided by a doctor or nurse are not covered by the NWT Health Care Plan when they are not considered to be “medically necessary”.

For example, if you require a medical examination to keep your driver’s or pilot’s license, there will be a fee for the exam.

Vaccinations for travel purposes are not publically funded, so you will be charged a fee for these as well.

Also, sometimes people visiting Canada need to see a doctor in the NWT. These individuals will need to pay the Health and Social Services Authority a service fee because they don’t have a Canadian Health Care Card. Individuals who are residents of Quebec may also be given an invoice for services because Quebec does not have cross-jurisdiction billing agreements in place, these individuals can seek reimbursement from their home province.

Sometimes there will be fees charged for photocopies of medical records as outlined in the Health Information Act regulation or Access to Information Protection of Privacy regulations.

Why are we changing the service fees?

Charging fees for certain services was always a practice within the NWT health and social services system, just like it is in other parts of Canada.

In the past we did not have coordinated fees across the system. Now we are standardizing the fees and how we update them each year.

This approach will ensure that NWT residents pay the same fees for the same services, making fees consistent and fair across the NWT. Charging for certain services also contributes to the sustainability of our health and social services system.

How will residents know what the fees are?

Where possible, your health care provider or administration staff will let you know if the service you need is not covered by the NWT Health Care Plan.

You can get information about fees from your health authority or online at www.nthssa.ca/fees. This guide also provides a comprehensive list of fees.

Will my employer pay the fees?

Maybe. Some employers may cover the fee. For example, if your job requires that you have a valid driver's license or valid pilot's license, your employer may cover the fee for the medical exam, if you are being asked to get one. Please check with your employer to see if they cover your fees.

Why aren't these costs covered by the NWT Health Care Plan?

In the NWT, like in other Canadian Territories and Provinces, the Health Care Plan only covers doctor and hospital services that are considered "medically necessary".

How do I pay for these services?

You will be able to pay your Health and Social Services Authority. Please inquire with your service location for information on paying your fees. There will also be payment instructions when you receive an invoice.

What if I can't pay my fee?

The service fee policy includes waivers for individuals for three reasons:

- If paying the fee would be a financial hardship;
- If there are humanitarian grounds for waiving the fee; AND
- For reasons related to compassionate grounds.

For more information on who qualifies for fee waivers see the Service Fee Waiver Application.

How are the fees determined?

Medical and hospital fees are based on the NWT Insured Services Tariff issued by the Department of Health and Social Services. Vaccine prices are based on what the Health and Social Services Authorities are charged by the drug companies.

All fees are structured to reflect the actual cost of providing the service.
